Rooftop Bars

Nice, France

Nice, the jewel of the Côte d'Azur, offers some of the most spectacular rooftop bars on the French Riviera. Elevated above the Promenade des Anglais, these venues combine panoramic Mediterranean views with sophisticated cocktails, Mediterranean cuisine, and the legendary art de vivre of the South of France.

Introduction

Best Time to Visit a Rooftop Bar: Sunset is universally recommended across all venues — the light over the Baie des Anges at dusk is considered unmissable. Most rooftop bars are open from late spring through early autumn, though some operate year-round.

Seasonal note: Not all rooftop bars are open year-round. Always check opening hours before visiting, especially outside the May–September peak season. [1)]

Nice's rooftop scene has grown considerably, with venues ranging from budget-friendly terraces to exclusive five-star hotel bars. The city's Mediterranean climate means rooftop terraces enjoy exceptional sunshine hours, making them viable well beyond the summer months.

- Getting there: Nice city centre venues are easily reached on foot or by tram (Line 1 and Line 2).
- Photography: Early evening light (the golden hour) provides the best conditions for photographs of the Baie des Anges.
- Budget option: Bella Ciela and Bocca Nissa offer the most accessible prices on the circuit.
- Splurge option: Elaïo at Le Méridien and SEEN by Olivier at Anantara are the premium choices.

Paris Yank Recommandations

Bocca Nissa

Super Casual

Pros

- Good for kids & Crowds. Yeah, everybody. No worries about spills and large orders (just let them know beforehand).
- Located in Nice Vielle Ville; everyone knows the location
- Quite 'homey' with a warm welcome and OK service
- Inexpensive; no tip expected

Cons

- Rooftop, yes. View, no. The verrrrry top of the second floor.
- Very casual, including the chairs and tables that tip and wobble because of the uneven wooden flooring.
- Open air restaurant, meaning smoking is A-OK
- You might be seated with another group of diners and a common table
- Even with the Open air on all sides, it can be noisy when busy as weekend nights
